Election, Homecoming Highlight Fall

Fall was cluttered with fond memories and filled with plans for a very good year. The season brought with it well-executed activities ranging from a Senior-sponsored Homecoming to assemblies supporting candidates in the Virginia Gubernatorial race. Although defeat proved inevitable for some, each student gained from the knowledge and experience of involvement. From the recycling of old ideas to the recycling of paper for the SCA, fall was transformed from a season of planning into a season of action.

Involvement Creates Awareness

Teamwork proved to be the primary goal in the various clubs, athletic teams, and classroom activities. Respect, cooperation, and sportsmanship were combined to form the basic elements behind all DCSHS happenings. Emphasis was placed upon participation throughout the entire student body, bringing an awareness of involvement to each student.

Above right: Attentive listening to group discussion serves as a major factor at Hi-Y meetings. Above: Martha Pulley carefully prepares for the shooting of a foul shot.

Snow, Energy Crisis Break Routine

Winter brought with it an extended Christmas vacation, chilly rooms, and the drudgery of midterm exams. However, the monotony of school routine was dissipated by schedule changes due to the energy crisis. Students' concern for the world around them was demonstrated by recordbreaking donations to various charitable organizations. Thus, winter was a season of surprises, routines, and constructive efforts.

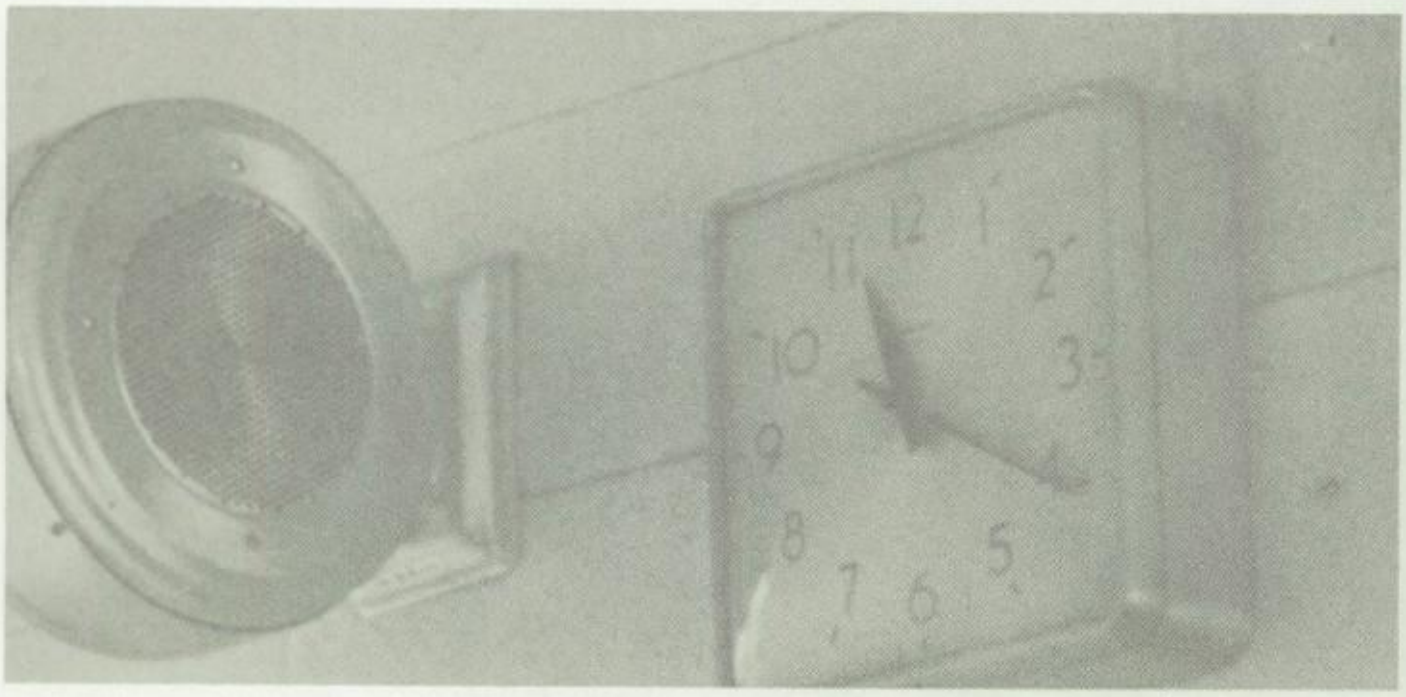
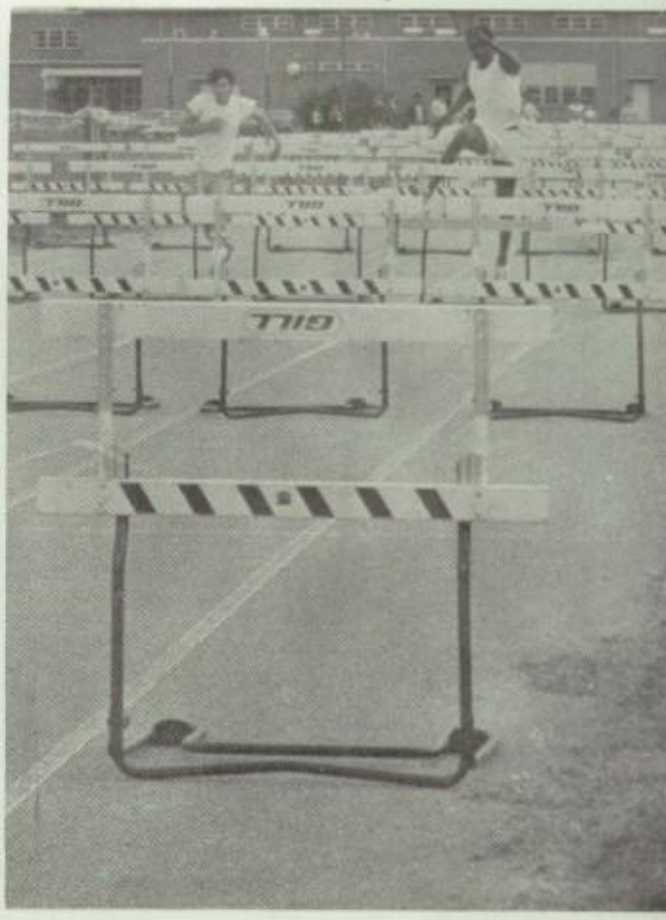
Students Uphold Traditions





Spring blossomed with painstaking planning sessions for formal dances, concerts, and athletic events. Traditions were upheld by DCSHS students when such occurrences were carried out, for the most part, successfully. Outstanding achievements in wide-spread fields of interest were recognized at this time by various school and community groups. Ending with more plans and noteworthy achievements, spring had become a season of personal recollections and memories that contributed to a very good year.

Fruitful Year Ends

With the arrival of summer came the end of a very good school year and the beginning of a new way of life for the graduating class. Organizations benefitted from knowledge acquired at summer workshops, conferences, and seminars which enabled them to survive for another year. Opportunities gained through study and diligent efforts were brought within reach as the summer season began.

FALL

Fall was a very good season in a very good year. As the '73-'74 school year began, faculty and students sought to relieve premature classroom monotony with the renewal of school spirit. Strenuous efforts made by an unbidden group of spirited seniors resulted in a resurrected Homecoming which highlighted a rather disappointing football season.

Senior Effort Makes Homecoming Possible

It was a year filled with plans for Homecoming and the Prom, deadlines for college applications, and sentimentality as graduation exercises approached. Working towards this ultimate end, the Senior class struggled with accelerated courses and assorted achievement tests, hoping to attain advanced placement in future studies. The Senior year is traditionally accompanied with orders for portraits, jewelry, caps and gowns, and announcements, and this year was no exception, the result being a majority of Seniors with exhausted funds; however, the upper class was unanimously filled with the emotion of accomplishment and expectation at the year's end.

Juniors Not Hindered by Doubts of Future

Realizing the multitude of expenditures which they would incur in their remaining high school years, the Class of '75 pushed magazine sales to attain an impressive figure that exceeded the earnings of the foregoing class. Juniors excitedly purchased class rings to find their purses immensely deflated. However, enthusiasm for the approaching Ring Dance ran high and overshadowed individual financial crisis. With schedules weighted by SCAT and STEP tests, and perhaps the additional burdens of PSAT's and college boards, Juniors looked to the Ring Dance as a welcome release from the bondage of work. These illusions of freedom were soon drowned in a deluge of sweat which continued to flow in consequence of the conventional toils of the Junior year.

Class of '76 Undaunted by Lack of Officers

Overwhelming confusion partnered the initial excitement of Sophomores entering a new school, but the bewilderment soon gave way as the underclassmen promptly adapted to the routines of the system. The Class of '76 deviated from tradition when they plunged into the tedious work of the school year without the leadership of class officers. Nevertheless, enthusiastic Sophomores banned together to confront upperclassmen in spirit competition and successfully proved themselves worthy contenders for the "spirit stick." Sophomores found themselves compelled to scan a wider scope of their future and prodded by guidance counselors to divulge plans for the coming years. However, many tenth graders preferred simply to anticipate the days when they would attain the status of Juniors.

Efforts of Band Add to Spirit

Coping with a noticeable drop in band membership, director Joseph Lyman accordingly prepared for annual band activities. The band added spirit and atmosphere to Homecoming Activities, as well as performing during halftime at other home football games. Endless rehearsals for the Christmas and Spring Concerts occupied many class hours for band members, the results of which were well worth the time spent.

Diligently working under the perusal of Mr. Bell, the DCSHS drill team practiced frequently to perfect their routines. Members of the squad skillfully performed at football halftimes for the entertainment of spectators and to support the team. Preparing for the various special parades throughout the year took much of the drill team's spare time, but members found the experience extremely rewarding and were delighted at the chances to flaunt their newly-learned techniques.

Cheerleaders Bustle About on Busy Schedule

After attending Golden Eagle Cheerleaders Clinic at Wofford College, the Varsity Cheerleaders returned to school bursting with exuberant spirit. With the immediate onset of football season, the cheerleaders were preoccupied with pep rallies, breakfasts, parties, and dinners for the football team. Prior to and during homecoming week, the girls worked diligently on plans for the annual "Mr. Pretty Legs" contest, spirit sign contest and "Sneak-Up-on-the-Knights Day." Candy and homemade goodies were sold to finance the constantly used treasury, and the cheerleaders' never-ending spirit extended through basketball and baseball seasons as strongly as it began in the autumn.

JV Cheerleaders Overflow With Spir

Leading the sophomores into another victorious season in "spirit stick" competition, junior varsity cheerleaders exhibited the exuberance that established their positions on the cheering squad. With the money that shoe polish, pennant and stationery sales afforded them, the girls were able to create spirit in the school and to keep the girls and JV basketball teams in full momentum for their competition throughout the year.

DCHS Students Fight for Homecoming

Rebellious students bombarded school officials with multitudinous protestations as the knowledge that there would be no Homecoming activities filtered through the school population. Realizing they were to be deprived of this final football festivity, indignant Seniors joined forces to organize the annual celebration. As the plans and prepartions progressed, participating members of the Class of '74, Mrs. Joy Bolte (Senior Class Sponsor), and previously skeptical administrators were astounded by the spirited response of DCHS students when asked for donations to fund the event. The climax of the week's merrymaking arrived as the decorated float rolled on the field, while the Band, Chorus, Drill Team, and Majorettes performed to the theme song, "Try to Remember." Fireworks and helium-filled balloons permeated the sky to honor the Homecoming Royalty: Julia Branch, Queen; Martha Pulley, Princess; Arlene Yates, Maid of Honor. Even though the Generals suffered a defeat at the hands of the Thomas Dale football team, enthusiasm prevailed through the memorable evening.

Generals Have Largest Team Ever

Nineteen seventy-three was a rebuilding year, brought on by the loss of 17 seniors from the 1972 squad. A new passing offense, the results of which were very encouraging, was introduced to the team which included 8 rookie offensive players. Although this newly introduced offense helped establish many new passing records for DCSHS, the overall inexperience of the squad obviously handicapped the Generals. Tremendous efforts were offered by six players with no experience in organized football.

Gens Tackle Rebuilding With Zeal

Many spectators will remember the '73 season with little regard, but despite the many setbacks, a strong foundation has been constructed on which to build a winning 1974 football squad. Although '73's seniors will not be on the team next year, their leadership has been indispensable in building this strong foundation.

Lack of Experience Overcome by Lady Generals

New faces and talents abounded in large numbers on the girls' basketball squad for the 1973 season. Striving diligently for success, the DCSHS girls matched the tough competition of opponents to pull through the year with a 9 — 5 record.

Teamwork Invokes Succes

Struggling to maintain the magnificent record of past years, Lady Generals faced the upcoming season with room for improvement, and improve they did! With only two players who had starting experience, the DCSHS girls' basketball team experienced defeat in the early part of the season. As the tournament neared, the Ladies exhibited the teamwork which enabled them to hold their heads high and triumph over teams who had previously beaten them.

WANTED

WINTER

Winter was a very good season in a very good year. Throughout the academic year, clubs played a variety of roles in order to instill a spark of life in the frequently tedious lives of the students. With the arrival of winter, these organizations were presented with the difficult task of creating a festive atmosphere for the coming holiday months. Despite the immensity of this job, success always seemed inevitable.

Generals Shoot Into Action

Tackling such teams as those from Gloucester, Richmond, and Varina in pre-season games, the DCSHS basketball team sought to add experience to their long hours of practice with hopes of becoming a winning team. With Petersburg, defending State champion, far above any other team in the area, the District found the battles for second through eighth places very tough, as evinced by the marginal losses of Dinwiddie in several games. Working as a team proved to be a problem for the Generals, while inconsistency and a lack of ability to win close games cost the team a high District finish.

JV Team Impresses Spectators

Even though they were handicapped by the lack of size and experience, the DCSHS JV Basketball Team made up for this with determination, hustle, and a pressing defense. This strong determination was exhibited when, after losing seven of the first ten ball games, the JV's made a tremendous comeback by winning five of their next six games. The team was led in scoring by James Curtis and Clifton Evans, who were backed by the strong defensive play of Timothy Pegram. The JV's have good potential for becoming a champion varsity team within the next two years.

Generals Wrestle With Bad Breaks

Dinwiddie's 1973-74 westling season should go down in history as an off-Broadway production of "The Heartbreak Kid."

Plagued by a multitude of mishaps, from dropping academic averages to a separated shoulder, the squad lost six veterans of the '72-'73 team by the time the tough competition of the Regional Tournament began. Coach Tilson and DCSHS's experienced wrestlers fought every bad break imaginable to salvage a very respectable record in the rapidly improving Central District action.

Individual efforts were not overlooked as Jeff Jones exceeded the long-standing school record "for most points in one season," and George Davis surpassed the DCSHS record for "most pins in one season" and "most career pins."

Matmen Emerge Top Contenders in Tournaments

Displaying much of the skill, agility, and strength that makes up the Generals Wrestling Team, Herbert Butler (185 lbs.) and George Davis (Unl.) led Dinwiddie's matmen with first place finishes at the District Tournament. While Chuck Patton (167 lbs.) on a second place standing, Rick Bega (98 lbs.) and Jeff Jones (119 lbs.) each won third place, and Freddie Hobbs (145 lbs.) achieved a fourth place finish. As George Davis, Herbert Butler, Chuck Patton, and Jeff Jones advanced through the Regionals to the State Tournament, wrestling enthusiasts sat back to watch the action and await another season.

ournalistic Efforts Make Paper a Success

Room 77 once again felt the rush of budding journalists, as the staff of Generally Speaking set out on another year of informing students of school happenings. A special Christmas edition, held up until after New Year's, caused many a headache for staff members. Meeting deadlines was a main objective of the staff as they endeavored to turn out a good monthly journal of student activities.

"Women's Lib" Triumphs at DCSHS

As the move toward sexual equality continued, the Fellowship of Christian Aheletes succumbed to "Women's Lib" with the admission of females into a former exclusively male organization. Sponsoring the "Redhead vs Faculty Basketball Game" and various other fund-raising projects enabled the club to give their treasury a boost. With their funds increased, the FCA endeavored to benefit the community as they prepared for the holidays by providing a Christmas basket for a needy family.

GAA Discovers Faculty Talent

Enlisting the DCSHS faculty to entertain their students, the Girls' Athletic Association succeeded in introducing a variety of adults to the pleasures of theatrical performing. "The Nifty Fifties" Faculty Talent Show proved to be a big hit and the cash rolled in. High on the club's agenda were the spring intermurals with other participating schools and volleyball tournaments to be played between DCSHS clubs and classes. Continuing their search for vigorous activities, GAA members attended a "play day" at Virginia State College and indulged themselves in a club picnic later in the spring.

SCA Encourages Involvement

Attempting to further the literary education of DCSHS scholars, the Student Cooperative Association encouraged students to read by establishing a weekly reading period and a paperback book exchange. The experiences of students were further broadened as the SCA advocated excursions to various youth conferences and supported an Ecology Club and a Safety Council.

Helping to run the school smoothly, SCA members counted ballots for elections, published school menus, and worked at a variety of other tasks.

The SCA conducted several drives for charity, sponsored a bloodmobile, organized an SCA "Citizenship Day" as well as encouraging voter registration to promote student participation in community affairs. With such extended projects, the organization sought funding through candy sales, a car wash and other money-making ventures.

Working to keep fund-raising projects from overlapping and arranging collaborative efforts between clubs kept the Interclub Council members busy and proved how vital their organization was to the school. French Customs Stimulate Studies

Endeavoring to fulfill a French club purpose, that of learning the basics of French culture, students of the "Romantic Language" listened to the provocative lecture of the club president as he shared with them memories and scenes of his past summer's experiences in France. Eager to learn more about the people and language of France, students quickly became engrossed in furthering their knowledge of this.

A small-scale Mardi Gras and an exchange of étrennes (similar to Christmas presents) were main events in the French club agenda, and the customary club initiation created pandemonium in the hallways as initiates performed tasks for French club alumni.

New Knowledge Brings Better Understanding

Spanish students enthusiastically began the year by gaining new and renewed knowledge of the Spanish language. Preparations for a Christmas Fiesta were stifled by snowfall, but plans for the now annual Spanish picnic went under way as usual.

Students furthered their knowledge of the language by preparing indepth reports on Spanish-speaking countries and their cultures. New Spanish I texts allowed these students to progress more rapidly and to build a larger and more stable vocabulary.

More Than Acting Found in Drama

Though acting is a main part of drama studies, the Drama Club did not limit itself to mere recitations and performances. The members learned stage design and arrangement, terms used, lighting techniques, and other aspects of making a play a success. The possibility of using these newly acquired talents seemed remote, yet the stage devotees continued their search for new knowledge.

rtistic Students Unfold Talent

Such objectives as developing coordination, promoting cooperation and providing opportunities for exploring interests would tend to monopolize the calendar of any participating organization. The Art Club found room in their schedule to present the school with displays in the library and a Spring Art Show. With the encouragement of a post-graduate student, members of the club also participated in Art exhibits at Petersburg Park and Bollingbrook Day School.

Opportunities Excite Choristers

Thrilling at the invitation to vocalize on the Bee Gee Gary Show, chorus members enthusiastically commenced limbering up their voices for a year of singing. Several of Dinwiddie's singers began training early in the summer at a Virginia Music Camp in anticipation of the various concerts and programs to be presented for the entertainment of DCSHS students and the public. As the choristers became more advanced in their studies, many sought superior training and vocal quality as they prepared for All-State and All-Regional tryouts.

Concert Shows Musical Talents

Amidst torrents of rain, the 1973 Christmas Concert began. Performing before a relatively small audience, the Band, under the direction of Mr. Joseph Lyman, presented six arrangements two of which were medleys of Christmas songs. Led by Mrs. Shirley Townsend, the Chorus delivered thirteen songs which included four solos. Although the weather was horrendous, the concert succeeded in instilling the Christmas spirit in all present.

NHS Responds to Needs of School Community

Playing a vital role in the community the National Honor Society contributed to the funds of the Dinwiddie County Volunteer Rescue Squad and assisted the needy with clothing and food at Thanksgiving and Christmas.

This service club did not exclude itself from school activities, as members offered tutoring services and helped sponsor the Debate Team. Posting the Honor Roll in the front hall, giving bake sales, along with other projects whittled away the spare time of many NHS members.

Society Rewards Journalistic Talents

A lapse in activities did not stop members of the Quill and Scroll from continuing their services to the school through journalism. This international honor society did not admit to its ranks all commended scholars for the organization's principal consideration for membership lies in literary talent students exhibit while working on school publications.

Determination of Le Sabre Staff Garners Laurels

Brimming with talent and determination, the 1974 Le Sabre Staff forged ahead in order to capture the exceptional artistry of an excellent yearbook. With the assistance of a summer workshop at the University of Richmond, editors were alleviated of some of the pressures of meeting deadlines. Only after minor interuptions from a brief snow vacation and the frustration of misplaced layouts, did the Le Sabre Staff finally settle down and anticipate ultimate results.

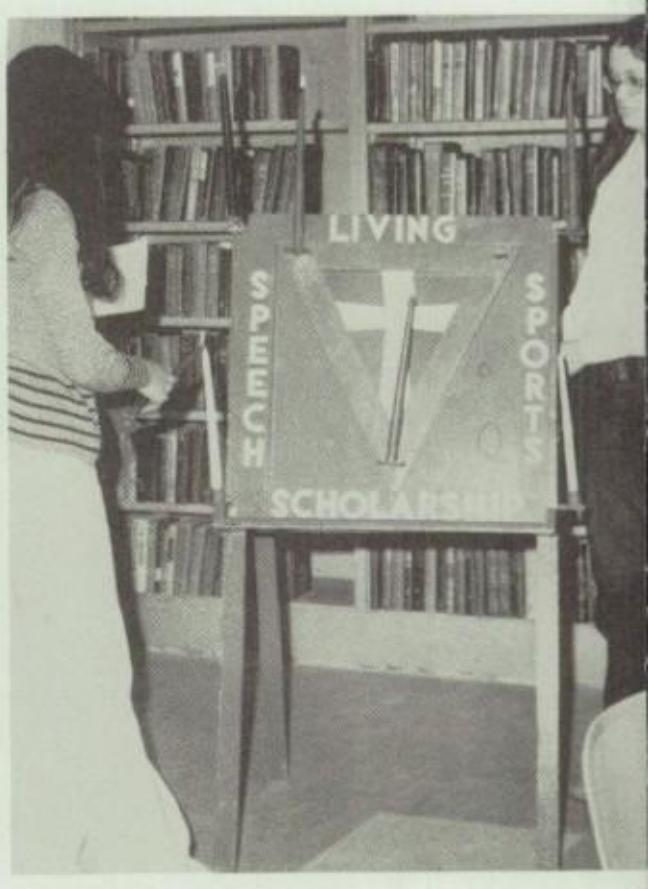
Enthusiastic Members Make Year a Succes



Tackling a multitude of service projects, the Tri-Hi-Y found its members enthusiastic and helpful as they set out to supply a needy family with a Thanksgiving basket and another family with clothing at Christmas. As the year pushed on, Tri-Hi-Y'ers faced Hi-Y/KOPE Week, MGA, and the District Conference. With determination and fortitude Tri-Hi-Y members achieved success and were able to view the year with the satisfaction that they had done their work well.

Hi-Y Makes Effort for Community

Co-sponsoring the annual Spring Variety Show with the Tri-Hi-Y added a light touch to the agenda of the Hi-Y, while it also brought in funds for the projects of the year. Hi-Y members endeavored to sustain their treasury as they sold chances on a turkey to Christmas hopefuls and those who simply wanted to support the organization. Working hand-in-hand with the Tri-Hi-Y, Hi-Y'ers sought community projects to better the community.

For the second year in ccession, the Dinwiddie Chapter was ected as an Honor Chapter on the te level and also received the Gold l award at the National Convention in Washington, D.C., in June 1973. Competence in spelling and arithmetic, as well as knowledge of parliamentary procedure, was promoted for the first time this year in Typing I and COE block classes. Name Change Makes for Interest, Actio

Altering their facade, the organization that was formerly FTA was presented with the title of Student Action for Education to promote student interest. Visits to Virginia State College and Richard Bland College along with various fund raising activities forced SAE members to maintain a bustling pace. Adding to already vigorous schedules, participants in the club celebrated SAE Week with "Teach Day," "Be-Nice-to-Teachers Day," and a variety of other affairs that were related to the teaching profession.

DECA Strives for Participation

To encourage participation in their organization's goals, members of Distributive Education Clubs of America crossed the threshold of a new year with plans for a recruitment program in their pockets. Generating interest in their scheduled meetings, DECA enlisted various speakers and presented an assembly on shoplifting prevention. Attending Career Development Conferences on the District Level, DECA participants competed in occupational divisions with hopes of ascending to state competition and a chance to attend the National Career Development Conference.

Future Homemakers Focus on Childre

Dinwiddie's FHA focused its attention on the problems and joys of preschool children. The fascinating variety of projects which the preschool program presented provided FHA members with experiences to enrich their knowledge of children's physical, emotional, and spiritual needs. Filling much of their time with activities such as creating a play center and visiting kindergartens, participants found moments to spare and became instrumental in reorganizing the Virginia Dare Federation, Future Homemakers of America.

ERO/FHA Grows During Second Year

Emphasizing "Growth and Changes in Clothing Careers and Occupations," Occupational Home Economists faced change as this was to be a building year for the new club. In their launching program, the Dinwiddie Chapter of HERO /FHA found that they were able to initiate a successful program of action for the year. Willing participation and active involvement of members insured progress and prosperity for the renovated organization — Home Economics Related Occupations.

FFA Achieves Top Ran

The activities of the DCSHS Chapter of the Future Farmers of America achieved and worked on a rather large scale. The forestry judging team, which competed in the area Forestry Judging Contest, won first place in that event. Dinwiddie Chapter Vice-President, Norman Edwards, attended the National F.F.A. Convention in Kansas City. In anticipation of hunting season, a representative of the Virginia Game Commission presented a program on wildlife conservation to the chapter members. Continuous improvements made on the school's Nature Trail and the Senior Court, in addition to plans to participate in the area Livestock and Dairy Judging contest, kept the members of the FFA exceedingly industrious.

COMING SPRING

Spring was a very good season in a very good year. Class and club activities abounded during the second semester, involving students with strenuous practices and preparations. For upperclassmen, anticipation of the Ring Dance, Senior Prom, and Graduation catalyzed traditional "spring fever"; however, sophomores found that they had only the school year's end to look forward to.

Gens Exert Fantastic Ability

Due to a lack of school funds to build a track Dinwiddie again found it necessary to travel away for all track meets in '73. A lack of school support compounded with a fresh, unexperienced team, produced no winning meets for DCSHS, but the group's relay team proceeded to place in District Competition. Showing a definite improvement over last year's performances, the team exhibits a great deal of future potential for a winning season.

Lady Gens Take 6th at State

The girls' track team at DCSHS was a rather collective assemblage in 1973, its initiative year. Behind the enthusiasm and superb coaching of Mrs. Bracey and Mrs. Hope, the Lady Generals proved that they could hold their own on the track. The team claimed third place in the Meadowbrook Invitational after losing closely to the second place team, and placed fifth among sixteen teams at the District meet, and sixth among sixty-two schools represented at the State meet. With beginning experience behind them, the Lady Generals' '74 track team has a favorable outlook for the season.

Baseball Squad Battles for Progress

Team optimism for the '73 season proved to be high, even though the baseball squad experienced the considerable loss of seven of the starting players from the previous year. Sparking the team with enthusiasm, senior athletes led the young DCHS team into the season with determination and raw skill. To develop the team to its capacity, Coach Maitland and his players put in many strenuous hours of practice, toil, and sweat. Their efforts did not go unrewarded for the season progressed fairly successfully and the prospect of another year loomed before them.

Lady Gens Bat Way to Success

With eight returning lettermen who had the experience of playing on the 1972 runner-up district championship team under their belts, the 1973 softball team seemed destined to have a successful season. Skill, determination, integrity, loyalty, and, above all, an intense desire to win characterized the Lady Generals who dedicated themselves to the task of making DCSHS #1 in softball. Overcoming minor internal problems which had prevented the team from going all the way the previous year, these girls found there was nothing stopping them in '73.

Bottom: Kicking up dust, Carolyn Henshaw slides in home, bringing the Lady Generals' victory over Manchester another step closer. Right: Lady Gens form a last-minute huddle before the battle for victory begins in their highly competitive game with the Manchester Lancers. Below: Attempting to relieve pre-game tensions, the girls' softball team and Coach Goodman engage in an amusing talkfest.

The Lady Gens compiled almost as tight a defense and as powerful an offense as anyone could expect which was exemplified by players with a minimal number of errors and a team batting average of .561 for the season. In citing team play, Manchester and Colonial Heights, along with Dinwiddie, were considered the top three teams, but Dinwiddie's girls went on to show themselves superior in play when they were victorious in the District Tournament and won the 1973 Central District Softball Championship.

Golf Team Tees Off

Compiled completely of underclassmen, the 1973 DCSHS golf team displayed a less than impressive record of 11-12-1. However, this was no indication of the success of the season. Proficient performances, along with consistent play, improve the squad's confidence and gained the respect of their Central District competitors. With the experience of the season behind them, the returning lettermen have hopes that past achievements will prove profitable in '74.

Trophies, Monograms, Plaques Symbolize Dedication

Athletes that showed hard work, pride, and determination were those that were justly rewarded at the fall athletics assembly. Their satisfaction and pride swelled with the knowledge that only a person of a certain caliber could receive a monogram or individual trophies. The long hours of practice and competition were climaxed when the team members acquired the long awaited symbols of athletic achievement.

Spring Festival Offers Variety

The band and chorus again jointly contributed their talents to the production of the '73 Spring Concert. Solos and instrumentals were accented by the intermission Art Show, and the program was hailed as inspirational and enjoyable, and served as a temporary release from pre-exam tensions.

Art Show Displays DCSHS Creativity

The Art Club climaxed a work filled school year with the presentation of a well-prepared exhibit which accompanied the Spring Concert. The exhibit consisted of creative paintings, sculptures, ceramics, and crafts, all of which were structured by art students during the months of the 72-73 school year.

Lack of Funds Attacks Ring Dance

Gathering steam slowly, the Class of '74 attacked its Ring Dance with some reluctance. Due to a lack of zeal and participation in the annual Junior Magazine Drive, funds were extremely low and volunteer workers were scarce.

With sincere inspiration and motivation contributed by class sponsors, Mrs. Bailey and Mr. Bell, plans fell into formation, molding the groundwork for what would become a memorable evening for those involved.

Long-Awaited Rings Arrive

Preparations for the Ring Dance proved to be more complex and intricate than previously anticipated by the inexperienced Junior Class. The theme, "Dancing In the Moonlight," was portrayed by a garden setting enhanced by a star studded sky and floral entrance arches.

Success of Prom Takes "a whole lot of doing

Seniors attacked with fervor the monumental job of preparing for their Senior prom, and found themselves confronted with the familiar obstacle of a very limited budget. With initial plans completed, an assortment of tasks requiring various forms of artistic talent awaited execution by enthusiastic seniors. When the evening of the prom arrived after days of tiresome preparations, seniors confirmed the prom theme's significance when they agreed that "It took a whole lot of doing, but we did it."

Past Memories Surround Seniors

Endeavoring to recapture the unique experiences of time immemorial, the Class of '73 adopted a motif for their prom that accentuated various aspects of their school lives. Murals depicting each year of the Seniors' primary and secondary education affixed a somewhat nostalgic air to the festivities of the night. In mellow candlelight, the gymnasium softly glowed with delicate lavenders and gleaming pinks, as "Wolf Moon" furnished intoxicating music to provide for a very pleasurable Senior Prom.

Seniors Look Forward to Better Year

Realizing the toil of three years at D.C.H.S. was about to end, the class of '73 displayed a variety of emotions as they nervously fingered their gowns before Baccalaureate Service and Graduation Exercises commenced. The students moved forward as a class for th last time, while, in minds, plans for th future mingled with memories of the pas Grasping their diplomas proudly, th graduates faced the years to come wit hopes of fulfilling their dream

Tony Williams finds chess to be a game of tremendous concentration.

Participation Thrives at DCSHS

Success, defeat, long hours of hard work, cooperation and determination compose each school year. Students begin the year with enthusiasm and find that such feelings multiply as the year progresses. Participation combined with excellent sportsmanship to form a very good year.

Ending Paves Another Good Road

Extracurricular activities developed a special interest throughout the year and united faculty and students through common interests. Familiar sights took on new and different appearances with the acquiring of knowledge, making each day a new experience. 1973-74 provided everyone at DCSHS with fresh ideas, brilliant opportunities and exciting experiences; thus creating a very good year.

Above left: "Ins" gradually appear as the faculty straggles in each morning. Above right: Sophomore students successfully demonstrate their "spirit." Left: Deserted cars symbolize a feeling of desolation often experienced by high school students.
